Why Read Aloud to Toddlers

Taking time to read a little bit every day to toddlers introduces new words and demonstrates correct pronunciation. You can teach your child words not found in daily conversation by reading different kinds of books to them.

Tips for Reading to Toddlers

Find a comfortable place for both you and your child to sit and read. Do so regularly or set a specific time.

Read slowly, show your children the cover, and pause now and then to see if they want to add something.

Point to the words as you read them; this will help your child connect the words you say to the marks on the page.

Pick a time that works for you and your child. Bedtime is right for some children, but if it's not right for your child, try reading during bath time or while having a snack.

Toddlers are active and may not be able to sit still for a whole story. That's okay! Come back to it later or keep reading as they play, you'll be surprised by what they might remember!

Track your reading by signing up for Stanislaus County Library's 1000 Books Before Kindergarten!
