Tech Connect @ the Turlock Library

The Turlock Library will offer a series of weekly Tech Connect programs this month on Mondays at 2 p.m. Each Monday will feature a different technology related topic. The series begins on June 6 with Library Website 101, in which participants will learn how to use and navigate the library's website. On June 13 the library will offer a one-time Computer Basics class, during which library staff will discuss basic computer terminology and programs available for use on the library's public computers. The Internet Basics class on June 20 is an introduction to searching the nternet. Participants in the Internet Basics course should bring a topic to research during the program. On June 27, library staff will offer instructions on the library's apps for free eBooks (Cloud Library) and downloadable audiobooks (Hoopla). Participants in the Free eBooks and Downloadable Audiobooks program are asked to bring their smartphones or other devices. They will also need their library card numbers, pin, and any passwords used on their phones or devices. Advance registration is required for all Tech Connect programs; please call the Turlock Library at (209) 664-8100 to sign up.

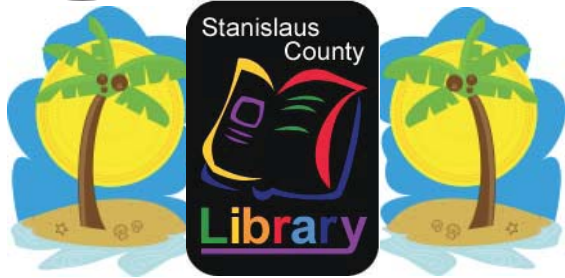

Birds of the Pacific Slope

Join the Modesto Library and the Stanislaus Audubon Society on Saturday, June 11 at 1 p.m. for a free showing of the book Birds of the Pacific Slope. Created by Andrew Jackson Grayson (founder of the town of Grayson), Birds of the Pacific Slope was not published until 117 years after Grayson's death. Salvatore Salerno will give a guided presentation of all 156 prints of Grayson's original watercolors. This program is free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be provided, courtesy of the Friends of the Modesto Library. No registration is required to participate in this event.
